

NATIONAL ACCREDITATION AWARDED TO PICTONS

DATE: OCTOBER 2008

Pictons has won recognition in a national accreditation scheme designed to assist injured people seeking legal advice.

The scheme which is run by the Association of Personal Injury Lawyers (APIL), assesses lawyers according to their expertise and experience, and provides a quality 'kitemark' to those who meet the strict criteria.

John Wardley, Pictons' personal injury team leader, said he was delighted the firm had gained accreditation status.

"It is crucial that injured people receive properly qualified advice and we are very proud to have been recognized for our expertise and professionalism," he said.

A recent MORI survey found that three times more people would prefer an accredited, independent personal injury lawyer to deal with their claim, rather than a claims management company.
